ISSAQUAH DUMP SITE

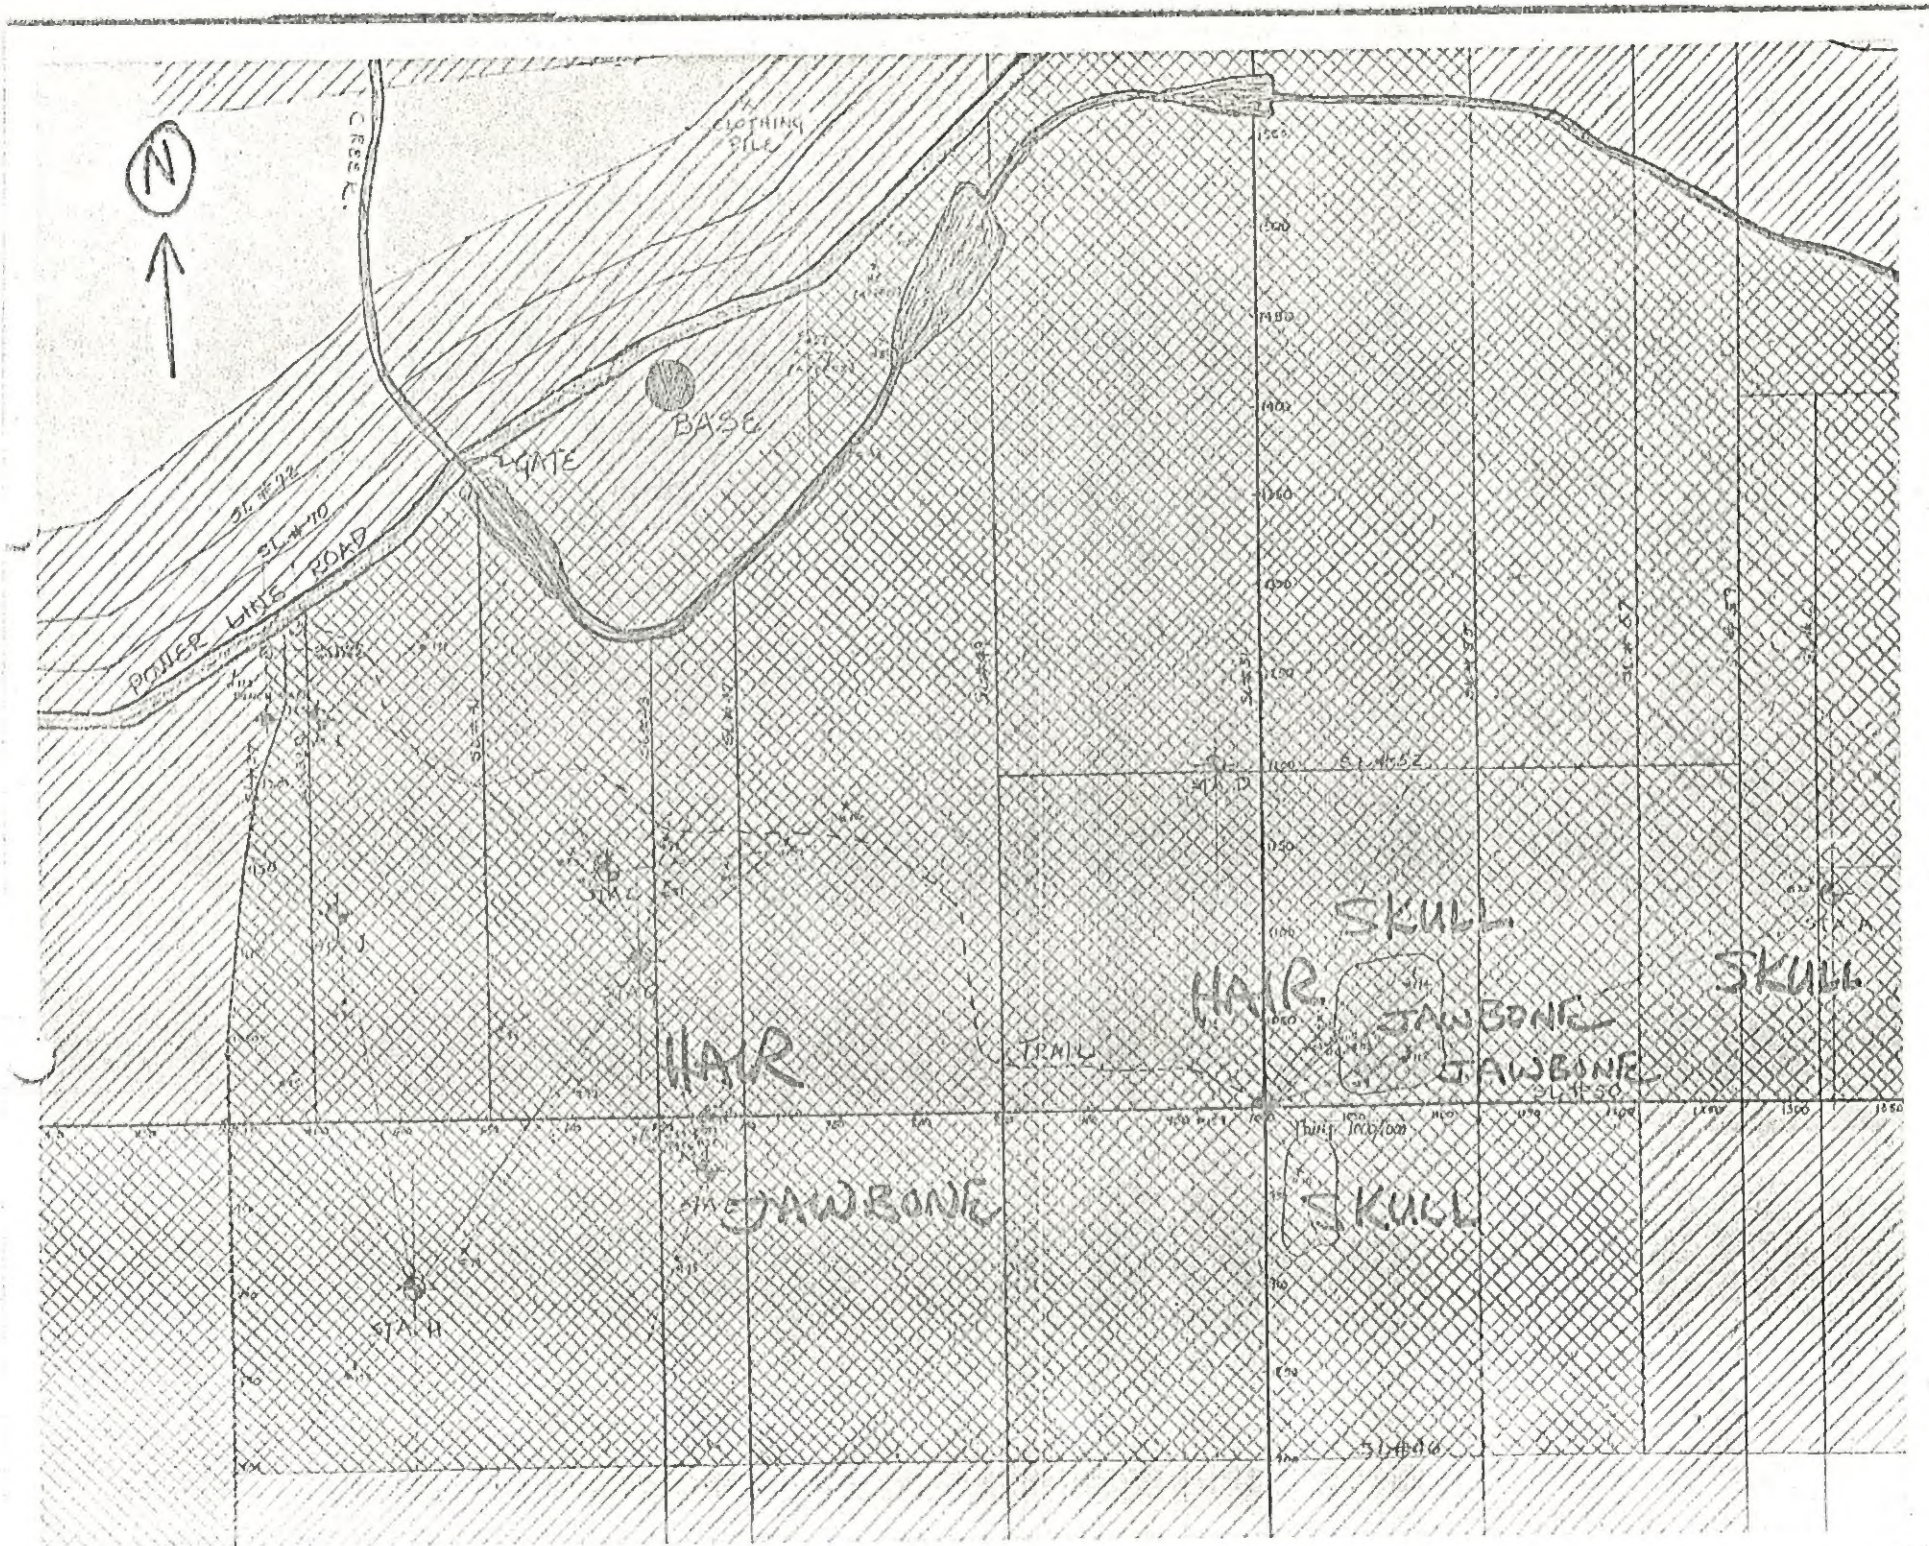

The location where OTT and NASLUND were found is 4 miles east of Lake Sammamish State Park on Interstate 90. It is on the north side and access to the north side is by the old abandoned Sunset Highway; a median prevents a left turn when eastbound. The corridor along the highway has been condemned for highway expansion and all homes near the site were vacant. There is a small gravel road which leads north uphill from "old Sunset Highway" and across an abandoned railroad line.

When they were dumped, the stinging nettles and underbrush were very thick, but a vehicle could drive back into the brush to within 40' of where the characteristic grease spots were found. There was a third set of bones found at the site but no skull or mandible was found which could provide identification. There were two grease spots within driving distance with blond hair nearby. There was another grease spot a little farther uphill near NASLUND's skull and mandible.

The skeletons were badly scattered by animals and no evidence of trauma, dismemberment or assault could be detected. There was no clothing, jewelry, or other personal effects near the scene. In a mile radius of the site several articles of women's undergarments were found but none belonged to any of the known victims. No occult or witchcraft symbols were found near the scene.

The victims were probably killed elsewhere and dumped at this location shortly after their disappearance. They were found 55 days after their disappearance. An extensive search was made in the area but the skull of OTT is still missing as are the skull and mandible of the third person. The two possible victims for the third set of bones would be Georgann HAWKINS and Donna MANSON.

A large quantity of immature elk bones were found 1/4 mile east of the scene on "Sunset Highway.". These bones were bagged in burlap gunny sacks and bound with twine. On October 16, 1974, a citizen found a porno book near the scene. It described an incident of "TED" luring "teaser" type girls to his parent's house on the hill so he could seduce them. These victims were short with long hair parted in the middle and wearing tight levis or ski pants.

We have compiled some cases from various jurisdictions going back to 1969. A great percentage of these victims was hitchhiking but none of ours were at the time they disappeared. Most of the girls were nude and transported away from the crime scene and dumped. None of the California victims is attributed to "ZODIAC." Most of the cases are unsettled with very little physical evidence.

TAYLOR MOUNTAIN DUMP SITE

The Taylor Mountain site is four miles south of Interstate 90 on the south side of Highway #18. It is a remote area and the property is adjacent to a power transmission tower line.

The skulls and/or mandibles of HEALY, RANCOURT, PARKS, and BALL were found at this location. There were several other bones found at this location but they were all non-human. This gave rise to the theory that the girls had been decapitated, however, no cervical vertebrae were found in the search. Animals in the area include coyotes, bears, and rodents, but the possibility of their consuming all bones of the body is slim.

The area at all times of the year is very brushy and would be extremely dense during June when BALL disappeared. The killer could have dumped the bodies in an area of evergreens nearby where there is less underbrush but no grease spots were found in this area either. No clothing, weapons, jewelry, or occult symbols were found at the scene.

The nearest homes to this site are 5 miles away but trailbike riders and hunters are usually in the vicinity on weekends. This site is 7.7 miles S.E. of the Issaquah site and 11 road miles.
